

The Story of Dr. Farokh's Master Score

Master Score is an ensuing creation expert system designed to effectively support students and practitioners of classical homeopathy in determining which remedy to prescribe to their patients.

It integrates several features and mechanisms that make the practice of homeopathy not only more accessible and more promising but also a constant learning proficiency.

The expert system signifies the thinking process of Dr. Farokh J. Master, who has an experience in classical homeopathy in hospital practice for more than 42 years.

From Dr. Farokh Master:

I have been analyzing my genuine cases for more than four decades, which has resulted in a rendition that is clearly above any expert system available so far.

Master Score will be constantly updated and improved based upon new provings, inputs by new authors, and suggestions by the results of the users, and ongoing research into the convoluted nature of homeopathy.

This expert system represents a new ethos in RadarOpus software, as the philosophy in every aspect of its continuous development is the maximization of the success rate of homeopaths and a focus on quality and maximum accuracy of the repertory testimony.

The project was initiated in 2019; after the experience of many homeopaths who were disappointed by the existing expert system, as a result the suggested system never showed persistent positive results. It was an enormous challenge to revisit the database and invent a new scoring system; with the knowledge of mathematical logic, probability, and data processing. I started doing research with my colleague Dr. Jayesh Dhingreja and developed an initial framework, and then built the confidence levels of the authors, various materia medicas, individual rubrics, their sources, cases cured, etc. The testing of those experiments confirmed that the method was producing consistent positive results.

Subsequently, I and Dr. Jayesh expanded our research in the expert system development, repertory addition of new rubrics, new addition by other authors, and constantly judging the success rate using such information. In this process, a significant factor was strict control of the reliability of symptoms of repertory and materia medica.

In June 2023, the first beta version of Master Score was released. Since then, we are constantly adding and upgrading its features and improving its performance and functionality, always committed to heaving up the homeopathy status by rendering homeopathic practice more successful and noteworthy.

How to use Expert System

Classical homeopathy is the most time-tested and effective form of homeopathy. It is entirely based on the teachings of Dr. Samuel Hahnemann (1755 - 1843), who developed the method after extensive observation and analysis of the reactions of the organism to ingesting substances.

The practice of classical homeopathy is based on the careful observation of symptom combinations, which guide the practitioners of homeopathy in choosing the right remedy.

The reliable remedy selection process cannot be instinctual or based on metaphysical axiom, naval gazing, or subjective views of individual modern teachers.

Practice of classical homeopathy always requires extensive and accurate information gathering from the patient, selecting the correct remedy in relatively straightforward way for patients in fundamentally good health.

However, when chronic problems have resulted in a more compromised functioning of the organism's various complex controlling and defensive systems, the identification of the similimum presents a severe challenge to any homeopath.

Such patients usually show symptoms or combinations of symptoms that indicate several remedies. The correct choice of a remedy can only be achieved by taking into account and weighing accurately a large number of parameters related to the patient's symptoms and their nature and by constantly confirming the candidate remedies by asking the patient-relevant questions. This is where the Master Score will help to support you to identify the correct remedy by going through thousands of references in the data base in fraction of a second.

Everyone knows that difficult and complicated cases requires years of dedicated study, practice, and considerable skill. Historically only homeopaths with more than few decades or so of devoted practice could hope to solve such cases, and even then indeed not every time. Hence for beginners this system becomes a boon.

Moving along these lines, myself and Dr. Jayesh Dhingreja quickly observed that, using advanced algorithms, with grading systems of authors brought excellent results in acute as well as chronic cases.
